LOT HISTORIES – SUMMARY DATA

Notes for readers:

The following catalogue of sites is a summary of all the historical records and maps pertaining to each of the blocks and lots under review. The sewer connection data is taken from the records at the Brooklyn Sewer Department, which are unfortunately incomplete. The first four books of sewer connection records have been lost, and the dates that they covered can only be estimated, based on the history of sewer service in Brooklyn, which began ca. 1859/60. The tax assessment records for Brooklyn's 6th ward, which includes the project site, are housed at the Municipal archives. The maps cited are in the collections of the New York Public Library and at the New York Historical Society.

Old block numbers used in the analysis of block 281, are taken from the 1880 Bromley map, as are all the old lot numbers, for block 281 and all the other blocks reviewed in this assessment, where the modern block or lot subsumes more than one old lot. (Current block numbers were applied after 1893 and before 1903, viz. the Bromley and Hyde maps of those dates, respectively).

“Vacant” as used here only means devoid of buildings (not unoccupied).

Words or phrases appearing in quotes are copied from the maps and appear in the style as rendered on the maps, i.e. italicized, small caps, etc.

BLOCK 281, lots 1, 62

Bounded by Hamilton Avenue (S) Van Brunt Street and Columbia Street (E) and Atlantic Avenue (N) and the river (W)

Lot 62

Current use: vacant / under water.

Old lot: part of old block 47, lot 20; area on the west side of Ferry Place no block number.

Old addresses: none.

First tax ass.: Union Ferry Co., 1869-1873.

Sewer conn.: none recorded.

Historic Maps: 1855 Perris: wharf on the west side of Ferry Place.

1869 Dripps: two piers and a railway around the north side of old lot 48, rest under water.

1880 Bromley: one large and three small piers, "HAMILTON FERRY" wharf.

1886 Robinson, 1898 Hyde: same with longer piers, "HAMILTON FERRY".

1886 Sanborn: same, coal conveyors from the Union Ferry Co.'s coal shed on old block 47 in the east corner of the site.

1904 & 1915 Sanborn: "UNION FERRY CO'S HAMILTON FERRY HOUSE" and "M.J. RUDOLPH LUMBER YARD" in the east corner of the lot; two piers.

1939 & 1950 Sanborn: "MUNICIPAL FERRY HO. FERRY TO SOUTH ST. N.Y.C." and "M.J. RUDOLPH CO COAL YARD" occupies the northern of the two piers.

1969 Sanborn: no land north of Ferry Place.

Conclusion: this part of block 281 is not sensitive for archaeological remains.

Lot 1

This large lot is divided up into its former blocks (Bromley 1880). Note that the west-east streets are no longer open or even visible west of Columbia and Van Brunt Streets because they have been subsumed into the open paved areas that make up most of the eastern part of this lot 1. The mapping, demapping, or widening proposed for most of these streets are discussed in Part I of this report, Chapter 2. Since these streets have never been built upon and therefore have no history of use that would warrant their inclusion in this catalogue, their potential archaeological sensitivity is evaluated in Part I, Chapter 6.

Old block 4 is between Atlantic and Pacific Streets, west of Columbia Street.

Old block 3 is between Pacific and Amity Streets, west of Columbia Street.

Note that old blocks 4 and 3 are now one continuous area forming pier 7, which extends from Atlantic Avenue on the north to the slip whose northern edge follows the former north side of Amity Street.

Old block 2 is between Amity and Congress Streets, west of Columbia Street, now mostly occupied by the slip between Piers 7 and 8.

Old block 1 is between Congress and Warren Streets, west of Columbia Street.

Old block 20 is between Warren and Baltic Streets, west of Columbia Street.

Old block 19 is between Baltic and Kane (formerly Harrison) Streets, west of Columbia Street.

Old block 33 is between Kane and Irving Streets, west of Van Brunt Street.
